

"THE DAY'S RIDE IS OVER, BUT YOU ARE RIDING INTO THE SUNSET FREE AND HAPPY"

*I remember ridin' the back pasture with you Lekshi, Frank
We played four handed whist in the little house 'til late and much coffee we drank
I remember your happy and go lucky ways, besides your determined and serious side
You said some things are just in your mind and to do what's right and abide*

*We had a grand slam that night and Myrlin and Uncle Glenn were pretty upset
Some days were rough but we stuck together and outlasted the sunset
We rode out on the flat and you guys did tricks off the horses' back
You had a way with our kids, always giving what you could and you never did slack*

*Remember those fine sunrises out to the country with all the cattle and horses grazing
You were determined to live life your way Lekshi;
With a smile and a firelight a blazing
We walked a few miles in the country but rode many up north where the coyotes play
I remember you coming from the west one morning
Saying you'd be back later that day*

*You gave advice and I listened to you as you spoke from the heart of life's ways
The night you came home to stay you sat at the table;
I knew you were nearing better days
We will remember your cowboy demeanor, your whim, and your wit
I wish some things would never end
But you told me once that we have to just go with it*

*It was sure nice growing up around you, your brothers and sisters in the country
We appreciate life's lessons from you all; thank you for all of the try Now you are ridin' with Lala Bill, Uncles Glenn and Reuben, Myrlin, Tom Bull and all the rest
I can't wait to join you all when we ride that dusty trail
And lope full blast; it'll be the best*

For my Uncle Frank whom I respected and learned many things from.
He is at rest finally and he's smilin' down and watching over us with the rest of family. May he ride easy.

Arlen Lee, 2-8-18.
